"Stone from Heaven" Exhibit

Ed Janecek Sculptures at the River's End Gallery

Waukesha, WI, July 12, 2010 – The River's End Gallery announced today an exciting new exhibit Stone from Heaven created by Ed Janecek beginning on August 1 and running through October 1, 2010.

Inspired by nature and spirituality, Ed Janecek's sculptures are objects of art that provoke thought, inspire creation and perhaps leave questions to be answered.

When ferrous materials have outlived their usefulness as agricultural implements, structural members, and tools of industry, Ed gives them a new life as objects of art.

"This exhibit is absolutely beautiful and is made up of one of a kind sculpture made from repurposed materials, explains Joan Skimmons, owner of River's End Gallery. "The sculpture is "Green" and environmentally friendly. The pieces are made from natural substances, but don't think that they are boring; they are the talk of the town."

Janecek is a Tool and Die Maker and teaches manufacturing processes at a local technical college. His sculptures are mostly inspired by nature, machinery and anatomy. Janecek makes one piece at a time from materials that come from farm salvage yards. He uses hot processes to cut, bend, form and join different types of steel and cast iron. Some pieces are buffed with a wire wheel and protected with a clear finish and others are left to rust.

The Stone from Heaven Exhibit is at the River's End Gallery beginning August 1 - Oct 1, 2010 during normal business hours.
